VOL. LXXXVIII., No. 23 NEW YORK, December 4, 1915 WHOLE No. 2287

Thousands of people, younger and older, will fairly revel in Prudence of the Parsonage, a homely, refreshing story of family life. It is as true to a healthy human nature and habits of to-day as Little Women was in its day. It is a family book of the best sort, exactly the thing to read aloud in the home circle. There are five children, all girls, to bring up; and Prudence, the oldest, does the mothering. The exploits and adventures keep one on the jump; the tale bubbles over with the humor of a typical American family, and a pretty love story is the climax.—The Sunday-School Times.

Authorized and Edited by the American Revision Committee

Every Bible in use today is a translation and revision from the ancient manuscripts, and because the American Standard is the latest and most accurate it is used and recommended by all the great Biblical scholars, leading Colleges, Universities, Theological Seminaries and is the basis of all notes in Sunday-school periodicals.

The American Standard is "the latest and best translation of the Scriptures." It makes clear obscure and difficult passages.

Compare these two examples selected from hundreds:

1. Cor. 15. 33

King James Bible

33 Be not deceived: evil communications corrupt good manners.

American Standard Bible

33 Be not deceived: evil companionships corrupt good morals.

Matt. 6 34

34 Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself.

34 Be not therefore anxious for the morrow for the morrow will be anxious for itself.

Remember, it is the same old Bible, but makes clear the words that have changed their meaning during the last three hundred years, and corrects the mistakes in translation from the ancient manuscripts.

"The best translation of the Scriptures in Christendom"

No Other Translation Ever Grew So Fast And it is Still Rapidly Growing

Because—1st. It is the most accurate translation of the Bible, which is the first essential to the student.

Because—2d. It is the simplest and clearest in its language, and so the most easily understood by the average person.

Because—3d. While of inestimable value to the scholar, it is also pre-eminently the version of the Scriptures for the common people.

The American Bible Society, since the year 1816, has published only the King James Version of the Scriptures, but, recognizing the great value of the work of the American Committee, and to meet the demand of Churches and Sunday-schools, the Society has recently had its Constitution amended so as to enable it to publish the AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLE.

The American Standard Bible is made in over 200 styles at prices from 35 cents up. Send for your Christmas stock now to insure delivery on time.

THE REJUVENATION OF THE BOOK-STALL.

A CENTURY ago, two centuries ago, there existed an institution known as the book-stall or book-stand. About fifty years ago arose a new institution known as the news-stand. During these last fifty years the book-stand has waned and practically vanished, the news-stand has thriven and spread and multiplied amazingly. We have no statistics, but it is not improbable that there are to-day fifty thousand news-stands in the United States, and it is probably no exaggeration to say that 75 per cent of the total magazine output of the country is sold through their agency.

What is a news-stand? and why has it proved so successful? Forgetting dictionary terminology the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY would define a "stand" as a one-man store, in compact space, with a swift-selling stock, situated in an artery of buying travel. Now flaws can be found in this definition and exceptions made to it; but it seems nevertheless true that the four phrases cited serve to differentiate the "stand" or "stall" from the retail store in general.

And the same four phrases seem to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to sum up the reasons for the news-stand's success. The average news-stand is where crowds are thickest, in railroad stations, hotel lobbies, subway stations, on boats, on the liveliest street corners—and the high rent cost of location is compensated for by the low rent cost of a very compact stock arrangement and the rigid elimination of all but immediately and continuously salable stock. All sales are for cash: there is no delivery cost, and but little book-keeping. And to the four reasons above might also be added a fifth, negative but no less important: news-stands do not cut prices!

The book stall died out—and the PUBLISHERS'

WEEKLY does not consider that the fact of a news-stand carrying a half-dozen new novels entitles it to be called a bookseller—the book-stall died out because it did not adopt and adapt itself to the business methods which proved the making of the news-stand. It is all very well to say that the news-stand thrived only because it had a more salable commodity. The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY would put the statement the other way round: the commodity became more salable with the increasing multiplicity of news-stands. It is the very omnipresence of the news-stand to-day that gives periodicals one of their most potent selling advantages over books. You have to hunt for a bookstore: a news-stand is always under your nose. You may want a book: you capitulate and buy a magazine.

Nor does the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY believe that periodicals have been so much more salable a commodity per se as to drive out books as stall competitors. Item for item periodicals will, of course, outsell books in any location. But, with a book-stall stock properly chosen and scientifically sold, the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY does not believe that on a dollar for dollar basis of gross sales the book-stall would suffer any marked handicap. It is a poor news-stand that does not sell two hundred papers a day, but the stand's profit on those papers will be considerably less than one dollar. The gross profit on the sales of three or four current novels would exceed it. The same news-stand might sell two hundred periodicals in a day; but the gross profit on them would probably be less than $8. It takes but a very few book sales to bring in over $8 over the wholesale cost. (We ignore cost of doing business in each case though here the advantage is clearly all on the side of the book-stand.)

In other words, though the average news-stand may, from the passing crowd, pull four hundred sales a day while the book stall pulls but forty, yet the book stall's gross and net return may very well run greater than the news-stand's. Furthermore the success of one book-stand would make the success of the next more certain. News-stands are an institution: we have become used to finding them always at our elbow and are seldom disappointed. Until book-stands are equally pervasive they will not reap their fullest measure of sales.

And the book-stand has one further field of sales—those on order—from which the news-stand is shut out. All that the newsstand has for sale it shows. The book-stand has on hand and shows what it can; but, equally with any book-store, it has for sale the whole realm of printed literature. Any book ordered could, of course, be obtained; and for very large classes of customers this would be as satisfactory as immediate purchase. The commuter who leaves his order at his Subway book-stand as he passes it in the morning, and receives his book (obtained during the day) as he passes it again at night, is receiving satisfactory sales service. And, in many cases, a book sale is made which, had it necessitated the commuter's personal visit to a more pretentious book-store, would never have been made at all.

That would seem to be the place and province of the book-stand: to make book sales that would otherwise have been missed; to wean readers away from the news-stand and what it stands for; to feed the book-stores, which must always remain the buying place of the real, what we may call the graduate, book buyer; to develop, book-buying in short, by making book-buying natural and easy.

THE idea of a sweeping offer to the public to furnish books on approval at the publisher's expense, while a common enough practice with publishers of subscription sets, has in the past met with but a luke-warm reception from the regular publishing trade. Now, however, one publishing house is featuring in all of its direct-to-the-public advertising the announcement that "Any of our books may be ordered on approval through your bookseller or from us direct, all charges prepaid. If the book does not please you, it may be returned at our expense in five days." Undoubtedly such a blanket offer is open to abuse; a few people will see in it a glorified free library wherein they can read new books in clean editions. The carriage two ways on returned books will not be inconsiderable and some books will be soiled, necessitating additional adjustments between bookseller and publisher. On the other hand the scheme helps to solve one of the most baffling problems confronting the book trade, it will undoubtedly put more books into the hands of interested prospective buyers. In the past it has seemed practicable to send books on approval only when the individual retailer knew personally the requesting customer. Whether the advantages of the new all-books-on-approval-to-anybody-charges-prepaid scheme overbalance its serious drawbacks will be watched with interest.

Of late we have received an increasing number of English publications, not imported in editions or otherwise "published" in this country. While we appreciate the receipt of these review copies, we must remind our English friends that we cannot give these books record in our "Weekly Record of New Publications," since that is intended to be limited strictly to books of American publication. We endeavor, however, to list such books in our current occasional record of important English publications, and also, if the book seems one of unusual importance or having special appeal to the American market, to note it under "Literary and Trade Notes."

SMALL BOOKSTORES.

THE fifteenth annual convention of the American Booksellers' Association made the usual complaint of the lack of bookstores in small towns, said the New York Evening Post editorially some time ago. The complaint is not peculiar to this country or generation. The Publishers' Association of England, it continued, has just heard it, and the London Nation recently quoted from a letter of Alexander Macmillan to Gladstone in 1868 upon the question:

"Whereas in former years there used to be many booksellers who kept good stock of solid standard books, one or more in every important town in England, and the booksellers lived by selling books, the case is now that in country towns few live by bookselling: the trade has become so profitless that it is generally the appendage to a toyshop or a Berlin wool warehouse. I believe the general intelligence of the country has suffered by it. My conviction, based on an experience of some thirty years, is that an intelligent bookseller in every town of any importance . . . would be almost as valuable as an intelligent schoolmaster or parson."

Much as every bustling town prides itself upon enterprise in providing almost all other articles, the sale of books is regarded with indifference. It was left for Indianapolis booksellers to tell the Convention that they had made their shops "part of the community spirit—something like the university and the public library, which everybody brags about."

We are told that the general public is careless of books. Those interested can order by mail—consulting catalogues, critical reviews, and advertisements—or from subscription agents. But the mail-business in books is a make-shift substitute for bookstores. We need such shops as are frequent in Europe, and as have made a success in scattered American cities. Sale of books by advertisement and mail gives the book of old and established merit, the solid work that will hold a respected place in its field for more than one or two years, little chance to appeal to the prospective buyer. Could he walk into some counterpart of W. H. Smith's wide-flung shops in England, or Ullstein's in Germany, to consult the shelves, such volumes would catch his eye. The publication of standard libraries like the "Everyman" series remedies this defect so far as general literature goes, but the special book in biography, history, science, or sociology rapidly sinks into oblivion. Again, existing methods give gross encouragement to mere passing vogues in books. One of the publishers spoke at this year's session of what a happy bit of advertising did for Charles Wagner's "The Simple Life." Ordinarily, no publisher can afford to "push" more than a score of volumes, and the rest of his output must suffer accordingly. No advertising and no criticism can serve half so well the man of small income, careful to spend his book-allowance wisely, as a plan whereby he can actually handle the volume.

Writers on the Egyptian plague of books that darkens the sky have often marvelled that all but the tiniest fraction are utterly forgotten before the next season. The portentous nature of the flood is one reason, but another is that the present method of distribution speeds the parting book as truly as it welcomes the coming. Our nation lives on new books, as Professor Münsterberg once lamented. It is impossible to find an American sponsor for many a book of scholarship, for example, which abroad would be considered a safe venture. Books of insufficient general interest to warrant advertising are often published by the author, or guaranteed by scholarly organizations. It must not be forgotten, of course, that it is possible to advertise specially in technical and professional journals, and that classified book-lists and catalogues may bring a wide variety of items before the average reader. But bookstores would remove some of the false emphasis on the showy and meretricious work in favor of the substantial volume, and would exert a steadying influence on the entire book-trade.

Our publishers are sure that it is not for them to establish their own chains of bookstores, and that their proper course is to assist individual businesses. The associated booksellers agreed with this view. On the one hand co-operation, on the other increased business initiative, may do much. But if we accept the view of Gladstone's correspondent that a good bookstore is a humanizing influence second only to church and school, the main responsibility for its encouragement rests with the community. The school and church should stand by their ally; and the citizen should regard a well-stocked and intelligently managed bookshop—as in Indianapolis—as almost a public institution.

UNIQUE EXHIBIT OF ILLUSTRATED JUVENILE BOOKS.

Books form one of the features of a thoroughly delightful exhibition of Art Associated with the Child now being held under the auspices of the Art Alliance of America at the Blakeslee Galleries at 665 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Everything artistic for the child—books and book plates, painting, scul-ture, miniatures, etchings, prints, photography, ceramics, interior decoration, furniture, costumes, jewelry, silverware, toys, and exhibits of school art work—has been gathered together for the exhibition. One alcove is devoted to worth-while illustrated juvenile books. Some one hundred books are displayed, handsome editions of "Mother Goose," "Treasure Island" and other favorites, together with a number of juvenile book plates. The following publishers are represented: E. P. Dutton & Co., Harper & Brothers, Charles Scribner's Sons, Frederick A. Stokes Co., the John Lane Co., Frederick Warne & Co., Platt & Peck, and G. P. Putnam's Sons.

The exhibition is aimed at both parents and the children themselves. There are wonderful toys, not store toys but hand-made toys representing characters from the "Arabian Nights," etc.; there is a model nursery, decorated by Grace Drayton, and filled with handsome playthings with which two artistically dressed children are unconsciously playing; also there are paintings and photographs of children and a wonderful doll house, the whole back wall of the second floor of which is lined with little movable dummy books made of wood.

The exhibition began December 1 and continues until the 13th. It is open week days from ten to six and from three to six on Sundays. A small admission fee is charged to adults every day but Sunday. Children are admitted free.

"THE LITTLE BOOK-SHOP."

We reprint the following open letter from Richard Le Gallienne to Laurence J. Gomme relating to the Little Book-Shop Around the Corner as a picture—somewhat idealized, to be sure—of that most delightful and most infrequently met with of institutions, the little book-shop with a congenial, literary atmosphere:

My dear Laurence:—It is good news that you are to continue to be the presiding genius of The Little Book-Shop Around the Corner. I rejoice as your friend, because I know how your heart has been engaged in an enterprise, which for you has been at least as much a dream as a business—as, by-the-way, most successful businesses always are—but I rejoice too, as a bookman, that thus you for us, that is, who, in these fierce and planet times, still remain lovers of books and the gentle arts, pursuers of beauty, and dreamers of dreams. The burden and heat of the modern day lie heavy on all men, and the more need, therefore, that particularly here in New York, in the whirling heart, so to say, of the maelstrom of modernity, there should exist for the more meditative members of the human swarm such an escape into quietude, such a little side-chapel of the Muses, as The Little Book-Shop Around the Corner is more than ever going to be.

"still will keep

I might call myself an Amateur of Solitude, a Passionate Pilgrim of Peace, and I imagine myself hard to beat as an anchorite of seasilences and the green loneliness of woods; but of all solitudes, all forms of seclusion, there is nothing, for me, to match that of a room filled with books; nor is any wafted perfume of flowering meadows sweet in my nostrils as that of old leather, or that of a fine book newly come from the press. Such is the peace, such are the Arabian odors, that greet one as one steps across your lettered threshold.

How I envy you your gracious calling! for ever since I was a boy I have thought it would be the most romantic thing in the world to be a bookseller. Need one say, that the ideal bookseller, as you and I conceive his sacred calling, is very much more than a mere seller of books. He is still, as in the golden ages of printing, a lover too of their "sweet learning," and a friend and familiar of the lovers and makers of books as well as of the books themselves. For his is no soulless merchandise to be trafficked in soullessly, like other dead commodities. Books, indeed, in certain places are, alas! sold by the pound and the yard, but such are "best sellers" rather than books, and the sad shame of such traffic need not cast its shadow here. You, I know, will sometimes have to do violence to your sensitive soul by selling the book that ought never to have been written to the customer who ought never to have been born; but even the most ideal business must contain its element of prose, and I feel that that element in yours will grow ever beautifully less as the personal quality of your work, its special aims and preferences, become known to that ever-increasing body of book-lovers and book-buyers who seek in books the great and the fine, the distinguished and the fragrant, and to whom The Little Book-Shop Around the Corner will naturally come to be the one golden bazaar for such things.

This selectiveness of yours in the matter of the books you most care to sell will result too—as, indeed, it has in a degree already pleasantly resulted—in your selecting your customers as well. The flower of books will necessarily only attract the flower of customers. Thus will accrue not merely a pleasant day-long atmosphere for yourself, but your customer will be assured of doing his book-shopping "unelbowed by . . ." well, by those who know not Apollo.

In fact, if he, or she (for happily book-lovers are created female as well as male) has a mind for conversation he or she will almost always be sure of finding some charming person companionably browsing among your shelves. In course of time a sort of informal Club of Charming Persons may very well come into being by the accident—not altogether accidental—of their dropping in to buy their books at The Little Book-Shop Around the Corner. And, after that, all kinds of romantic developments are possible. What is to prevent your shop dreams becoming a little Academy as well, where the aforesaid Charming Persons—Periclesian or Aspasian—shall discourse together of divine poetry, and other related matters; around them on the shelves alike the immortal essences of the great dead, and the newly-gathered blossom-promise of the living. . . .

Of course, these Charming Persons will be expected to buy books occasionally, in addition to being charming. And, let me add, too, before I close, that I hope you will see your way to adding an "old book" department to your business. The old book business in New York has fallen into sordid and sacrilegious hands. Most second-hand book-shops are mere rubbish-heaps. Won't you reserve a corner of The Little Book-Shop Around the Corner for "the small rare volume black with tarnished gold?"

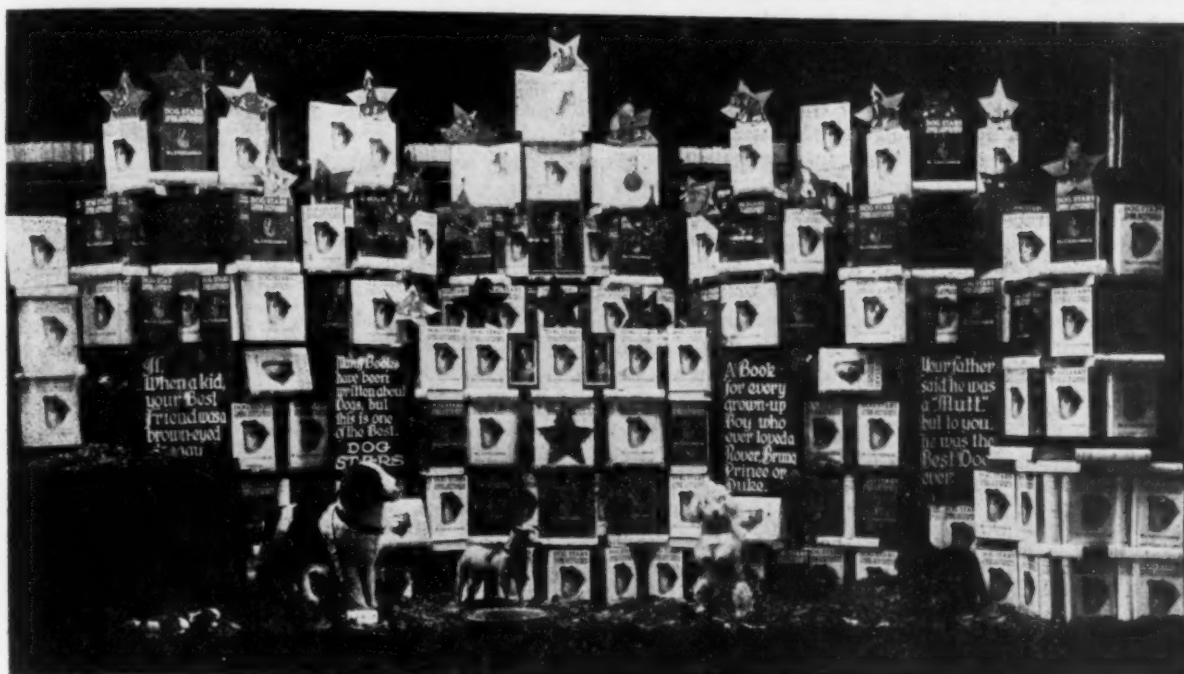

HOW THE "NEW YORK TIMES" REGARDS THE YEAR'S BOOK OUTPUT.

A STUDY of the list of 200 books which The New York Times "Review of Books" selects for its "Holiday Book Number" from the publications for the last twelvemonth of forty-six American publishers reveals many points that throw light upon the direction of literary taste in this country. As usual, remarks the Times, fiction leads the list, but with the interesting feature that it is even more than usually in advance.

The section devoted to History and Biography is noteworthy, especially in biography, for the many important works which the year has brought forth. The list is rich in the lives of men and women, British and American, whose achievements have been of high consequence. These books have an added interest in the fact that they deal with so many and such widely varied phases of human endeavor and success. The biographical works that have been brought out this year by themselves are sufficient to make it notable in literary annals.

Next in importance in the number of its publications comes the division devoted to books upon government, public affairs, economic and sociologic questions. Publishers are finding that this class of books is more and more in demand each year. In consequence, experts are turning their attention to the writing of them, and almost every publisher carries lines of such works, to which additions are constantly made, that treat authoritatively the problems of the business man, questions of public policy, sociological developments, experiments in government. The psychological laboratory makes practical application of the principles it has evolved for the benefit of the business man, and the successful business man himself takes time to write down the methods and the principles by which he has achieved success.

The widespread interest that all who care for the general welfare take in the country life movement is showing the result of this application of expert knowledge in the character of the books published about it. They are carrying it past the stage of sentiment to that of practical proposal and discussion. Of equal importance are the books that deal with the problems of the city, which also multiply in number and grow in authority as the public interest increases in questions of municipal government. The year has added a number of important books on municipal problems and municipal government in which authoritative handling of the questions involved combines with interesting presentation. This care to make books of serious consequence readable, even by those whose knowledge of the subject may be limited, is an interesting development of the last generation or so to be noted in many classes of literature. No longer ago than the middle years of John Fiske's career he was upbraided by fellow-authors in history and science because he wrote in a popular style. They held it to be a sort of treason to the hierarchy of intellect that anyone having intimate acquaintance with abstruse subjects should write about them in a way that would open the doors to their treasures for the man in the street. But so swiftly has the world moved in the last half-century that the aristocracy of such subjects has already gone to the dump along with the divine right of kings. It is no longer a merit in an author to be able to write in such a style that nobody can understand him who does not know at least as much as does he of his subject. And there are few things that have added more to the interest and the enjoyableness of life than this democratizing of literature.

A WINDOW THAT DOES EVERYTHING BUT BARK

Reflection of the way in which men's minds are turning to religious thought and question is to be found in the section dealing with religious and philosophical works. Before the breaking out of the European war there was already apparent an increase of interest in religion, and that awful conflict seems to have bent men's thoughts still more to consideration of God and of man's relations to Him. That stirring of spiritual depths which has been one of this war's phenomena, both in this country and across the ocean, seems to have found one expression in conscious intellectual effort to realize more fully and clearly the principles and the ideals of the Christian religion.

In recent years there has been no development in American literature more challenging than the growing interest in poetry and the increasing production of poetical works of high merit. The last year has been especially notable for the number and importance of these books. It has not been possible in a restricted list that had to cover all classes of literary production to include all the books of poems of interest, value, and importance that have been published during the last year. It is not too much to say that in the whole literary history of this country it would hardly be possible to find another year whose poetical achievement equals the production of this year in the number of volumes possessing genuine poetical inspiration, originality and exaltation of thought, imagination and beauty. And the publishers say that these books are meeting with a remarkable welcome from the reading public.

Of much interest also is the continued proof furnished by this year's books that American authors are finding congenial and noteworthy expression in the essay, and American readers pleasure in its perusal. For several years it has been possible to see a gradual increase in the favor accorded to books of essays, which a dozen years ago were taboo in the American publishing business. This year so many and so excellent are they that they make an arresting feature in the panorama of the year's books.

A survey of the general list shows that thus far neither American nor English literature has been much influenced by the European war. Of books dealing with the war from one or another angle there has been a constant stream, almost from the firing of the first shot. But, aside from this direct and inevitable effect, one would hardly know, from the publishers' catalogues alone, that a cataclysmic struggle is engaging the attention and the energies of nearly half the civilized world. As many as usual of the well-known names of authors are to be found on the title-pages of the year's books, and they are joined by as large a company of younger men and women just beginning to attract attention as usually comes forward within a year. And nearly all of them are concerned about things that have no or but little connection with the war. This is true of the British as well as of the American authors.

But the end of the coming year will probably have another story to tell. Most of the books published during the last year, other than those directly inspired by the conflict, were probably written wholly or in large part before it began, and next year, instead of the full and rich harvest the publishers have reaped for us in 1915, it will not be strange, if the lists are poor and thin, at least as far as English books are concerned. For many English authors are absorbed in service for their country, of one sort or another, and the conditions of anxiety and emotional strain are not conducive to literary production.

Whether or not the output of American authors, in either quantity or quality, will be influenced in the near future by the war is a question for whose answer it will be interesting to watch. Correspondence from the battle zones will doubtless prove a stepping-stone for a few ambitious young men from newspaperdom to authorship. One of our foremost novelists, Mrs. Wharton, is so engrossed by the services she is rendering in France that any book not directly connected with the war is hardly likely to come from her pen for a long time. Probably the production of a number of others will be limited in the same way. And there is always the possibility that the deep stirring of emotions, sentiment, and thought that is going on within our own country may have its effect in the stimulation of authors to finer and higher work.

But to theorize over the future is almost as unprofitable as to prophesy concerning it. And for the present there lies before us the surety of much pleasure with the books that have been published. For the list, on the whole, is one of such interest and consequence that authors, publishers, and public may well feel satisfaction, all alike, in its quality. So far as the war has had any effect in this country thus far upon general literature and the demand for it, apparently it has been to stimulate interest in better and more serious achievement.

RABBI LEON HARRISON, of St. Louis, recently gave the names of six books, the reading of which, he said, would make anyone an educated man: Flammarion's "Wonders of the Heaven," Geikie's "Primer of Geology," Taylor's "Primitive Culture," Spencer's "Study of Sociology," Lecky's "History of European Morals," and Clarke's "The Ten Great Religions of the World."

DINNER IN HONOR OF A. D. MACMULLEN.

THE well-known and popular traveler, A. D. MacMullen, received the surprise of his life on November 24 when he was lured to the Aldine Club and there met by many old friends who had gathered in his honor. The occasion was the eve of his 25th wedding anniversary.

The dinner was presided over by John Hovendon, the "dean emeritus" of the book travelers, who in most appropriate words and in his inimitable happy manner presented the guest of the evening with a loving cup suitably

The Wanamaker Book Service

A Specialized Book Store that Offers not only the Widest Selections of Books in New York, but also the Most Expert Personal Service to Book Buyers

HE whole Wanamaker Store is an aggregation of specialized stores, each complete in itself. Each is headed by a specialist who has made a life-long study of the merchandise he secures and offers to the public.

Under him is a group of people who sell the goods, every one specializing in one or more features of the merchandise at hand.

The Book Store Specialization

for example, is typical of the whole store.

The Book Store is far more than merely an astoundingly complete stock of books—it is a book service.

Of course, it took a more than ordinary specialist to make it the most complete book store in New York, to make it necessary to many thousands of book buyers, not only in this city, but also in far distant cities, even other countries. But is necessary to make a book store or any other kind of store a natural habit to its clientele.

Its customers are quite right to expect to obtain at once—"over the counter," as it were—certain goods which are in demand.

They expect to find in the book store which they patronize the latest popular novel, for example, the standard classics, and such other books as are for the moment in the public eye.

But suppose the books they want are of a nature that requires

Specialized Attention

—What then? Could they be satisfied with "just a salesperson?" Would you?

It is the difference between merely selling something to a customer and serving the customer.

Suppose the store's customers—you—wish to know what are the latest authoritative books on, say, vocational education, on the progress of the war, on science, philosophy, religion, economics, sociology, or any other line of thought.

Suppose a gift book is wanted, which should be unusual and not too expensive, or a book for a boy or girl which should be both entertaining and instructive, or any one of a thousand other kinds of books about which special knowledge is required.

A book store that can meet out-of-the-usual requirements of its customers—give them little helps by the way—is as well as books—that offers specialized knowledge which is a valuable economy of customers' time and which insures at first hand a satisfactory purchase.

The personnel of the Wanamaker Book Store is made up of specialists—those who are thoroughly familiar with religious literature, those who are thoroughly conversant with rare books and fine bindings, those who know the books of science, of philosophy, of fiction, of history, of biography, of domestic economics, of poetry, and of all the other literary classifications of knowledge and entertainment.

Every salesperson in the Book Store specializes on some part of the book business, so that some one of the staff can serve every customer with accuracy, intelligence, and dispatch.

Stock Plus Specialization Equals Service

With the vastness of its stocks and the specialization of its salespeople, the Wanamaker Book Store is enabled to offer a service which has built up the great business it enjoys.

So thorough is this service which it renders the public, that even librarians of both public and private libraries are more and more coming to depend upon the Wanamaker Book Store to supply their needs and keep their shelves up to date.

Whatever your book needs are we should be pleased to serve you.

The Children's Book Shop

is still another example of the Book Store's specialization—that it may make increasingly more complete its service to the book-buying public.

Here are the books of babyhood, of little girlhood, of little boyhood—in short, all that class of books which are called juvenile.

Here, too, one will find specialists in the literature of childhood to help one's choosing.

The London Book Shop is an example of the specialization within the whole Wanamaker Book Store.

It is made up of about 10,000 volumes of the rare and beautiful in bookdom—the joy of the collector's and book lover's heart.

Here one may find the ideal book gift at surprisingly moderate prices.

inscribed. The cup was filled with silver dollars as a gift to Mrs. MacMullen.

The guest of honor, after recovering from the surprise, acknowledged the tribute in a fitting manner and established a reputation as an after-dinner speaker unequalled by even Simeon Ford. One of the pleasant features of the entertainment was an original poem in honor of the guest by W. B. Walker. The music was led by "Dean" Uncle Bill Kelly. Among the speakers were W. B. Walker, W. J. Kelly, A. T. Leon, Harry P. Burt, Frank Collins, Joe Coyle, Max Hesslien, Victor M. Cupples, and H. M. Caldwell. Mr. Leon read a number of letters and telegrams of congratulation received from numerous friends in this country and Canada.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

CURTIS PUBLISHING CO. WINS SUIT AGAINST JOHANNESBURG DAILY.

THE civil magistrate at Johannesburg, South Africa, has found for the Curtis Publishing Company in the action against the Rand Daily Mail, of Johannesburg, for lifting original matter without permission. The Mail took the Cobb interview with Lord Kitchener over from the Saturday Evening Post. They acknowledged it. They defended the case and also made a claim in reconvention, on the ground that a substantial portion of the interview had been officially declared to be false. The magistrate gave $50 damages. He held that it was immaterial whether the article was true or not, as there was as much copyright in fiction as in truth, and in practice a good deal more. The defendants had pleaded custom, but custom was relevant only if there was evidence that plaintiffs knew of and acquiesced in it, so that there was an implied agreement by them in terms of the custom.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE NEED FOR 3 x 5 POST CARD.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10, 1915.

Editor THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

As the 3 x 5 library cards and index cabinets are now used all over the United States, not only in libraries, but in all "business systems," publishers, dealers, and those who reply to "Books Wanted" ads. should use a 3 x 5 card, so it can be filed alphabetically in the card index for future reference. Dealers and others who have private mailing cards would find it to their advantage to have them printed on 3 x 5 cards, with a blank line at the top edge for the subject under which it is to be classified, or for the title of the book. I frequently buy from old quotations, and recently purchased a book which had been priced to me five years ago.

If a number of dealers will write (as I have done) to the Postmaster-General, Washington, D. C., he will probably see the necessity for issuing a 3 x 5 post card.

EDWARD A. CLAYPOOL.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE CALDERON, the English poet and Slavonic scholar, is reported "missing" in the Dardanelles. He is known in this country as the translator of "Two Plays by Tchekhof: The Sea Gull, and The Cherry Orchard," and of the "Reminiscences of Tolstoy."

M. ADOLPHE NOURRIT, a partner in the well-known Parisian publishing firm of Plon, Nourrit et Cie, died in hospital in France on September 26, aged 46, as the result of serious wounds received in action. After completing his education he entered the printing works of his uncle as an apprentice, and subsequently passed through the different departments. When his uncle died in 1895 he became a partner in the business of Plon, Nourrit et Cie. He was president of various printing trade societies and a member of the Cercle de la Librairie.

PERSONAL NOTES.

B. W. HUEBSCH sails to-day on the Oscar II as a member of the Henry Ford peace party.

Mr. Alvin Ernest Raettig of the sales force of Fleming H. Revell Company was married on December 4 to Miss May Jameson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Jameson, of Springfield, Mass.

WE HAVE RECEIVED from W. J. Doxey, buyer of books and stationery for Siegel, Cooper & Co., of Chicago, a denial of the statement appearing in the press some time ago and reprinted in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, to the effect that William Doxey is in financial need. Mr. Doxey is living in Chicago with his son.

SINCLAIR LEWIS has severed his connection with the George H. Doran Co. and will in the future devote all of his time to literary work. Mr. Lewis will leave in a week or so for Florida. His successor in the editorial department of the George H. Doran Co. is Reese James who has for the past two years been associated with the editorial department of Munsey's Magazine.

PERIODICAL NOTES.

BEGINNING WITH THE ISSUE of January 1, 1916, Harper's Weekly will assume the page size of 8 x 12 inches, which is the size of the Literary Digest.

The Clique, the antiquarian bookseller's weekly published in London, owing to the expiration of their lease, have removed from 30 Rivercourt Road, W., to 258.

WE ARE IN RECEIPT of Vol. I, No. 1, of a new periodical, The Trade Journalist, "a service journal for trade, class and technical journalists." The editor states that this is the only journal published exclusively for makers of trade periodicals, and evidently hopes there is a field for it. This first issue is a 16-page quarto. It is edited and published monthly by Russell Raymond Voorhees, 307 Queens Plaza Court, Long Island City, N. Y.

THE LATEST SPECIAL NUMBER of the International Studio is devoted to "Paris Past and Present" and its pages are crowded with interesting etchings and paintings by such men as B  jot, Rousseau, Armington and Brangwyn. The text is by E. A. Taylor while the volume is under the general editorship of Charles Holme. As usual the typography and general format are of an excellence which makes it an unusually handsome volume for the library.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE PAGE CO. has just published "A Christmas Promise," by Caroline E. Jacobs in the Cosy Corner Series.

GOMME & MARSHALL published on the 26th of November William Stanley Braithwaite's "Anthology of Magazine Verse and Year Book of American Poetry."

WITHIN THREE WEEKS of publication a second large edition of "Wood and Stone" by John Cowper Powys has been issued, the first edition having been exhausted. G. A. Shaw is the publisher.

THE BELGIAN SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE, a sub-committee of the Central Belgium Relief Fund, is raising a fund to help worthy Belgian scholars and writers to come to this country and continue their studies and writing.

ARNOLD BENNETT'S first-hand impressions of the war have been published by Doran under the title "Over There." The book contains a number of interesting drawings by Walter Hale.

AN INTERESTING EXPERIMENT in book publicity was tried out last summer at Chataqua, New York, where Mrs. Evelyn S. Barnett, the literary editor of the Louisville Courier Journal, gave a series of oral book reviews before Chataqua audiences.

A SECOND VOLUME of "Georgian Poetry" has been announced in England. The first volume of this anthology of the work of certain of the younger English poets appeared three or four years ago and met with a warm welcome in this country.

WOODWARD & LOTHROP recently used an entire page display in the Washington Herald to advertise their book department. Twenty-seven headings were printed in bold-faced type and under each were listed three of the best of the new books in each field.

DUFFIELD & Co. have postponed the publication of "Felicity Crofton," the new novel by Marguerite Bryant, author of "Christopher Hibbault: Roadmaker," until January 3rd. Mrs. Munn's ill health delayed the completion of the manuscript.

ACCORDING TO SUPPORTERS OF THE STEVENS ANTI-CUT PRICE BILL, preparations have been made for the immediate introduction of the bill just as soon as Congress convenes. 162 members of the House are said to have been pledged to support the bill.

AT THE ANNUAL MEETING of the National Institute of Arts and Letters which we reviewed at some length last week, the following officers were unanimously elected for the coming year: Edwin Howland Blashfield, president; Ripley Hitchcock, secretary; and Arnold W. Brunner, treasurer.

"STULTITIA," a book on American unpreparedness published anonymously in the spring, has just been brought out by Stokes in a new edition under the title "Save America!" According to the new edition, the author is Huntington Wilson, former first assistant secretary of state.

IN ORDER THAT THE AMERICAN AND ENGLISH EDITIONS of Beckles Willson's "Life of Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal" may appear simultaneously Houghton Mifflin Company have been obliged to postpone publishing the books until December 10th. The "Life and Letters of John Hay" is now in its eighth printing.

THE THIRD SESSION of the sale of Part VIII. of the library of the late Adrian H. Joline, comprising American autograph letters and documents, mainly of the Revolutionary period, came to a close at the Anderson Galleries on November 24. The total for Part VIII. reached $3514, and the total for the entire Joline collection sold in eight parts amounted to $62,346.65.

ALFRED A. KNOPF has taken over all four of the Claude Bragdon books, "The Beautiful Necessity," "A Primer of Higher Space," "Projective Ornament," and "Episodes from an Unwritten History," from the Manas Press at Rochester. The discount has been increased on them all and they will be subject to the usual discount in the future.

A HANDY VOLUME issue of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" has been made for Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, by photographing the pages of the standard edition. The volumes of the new edition are smaller than those of the older one and the type is finer; however, the cost is only about a third of that of the regular edition.

AN ATTRACTIVE AND CHRISTMASSY JUVENILE has just been published by Duffield & Co. under the title, "When Christmas Comes Around." The nine short stories comprising the text are by Priscilla Underwood, and the six illustrations and the cover design are by Jessie Willcox Smith. A series of small decorative figures walk around the margins of each page.

A MANUSCRIPT NOTEBOOK of Washington Irving, containing about forty-five pages of memoranda on the early history of New York, was sold to George D. Smith for $245 at the Adrian H. Joline library dispersal in the Anderson Galleries on Tuesday. Letters by Gen. Charles Lee, Patrick Henry, Gen. Thaddeus Kosciuszko and others were among the other items sold.

DISHONEST ADVERTISING was attacked by the four speakers who addressed the Association of National Advertisers at its first public dinner, held at the Hotel Astor, on the evening of December 1. The speakers were Harry Tripler, president of the association, Edward M. Hurley, vice-chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, Samuel Hopkins Adams, of the New York Tribune, and N. C. Kingsbury, vice-president of the New York Telephone Company.

ONE IMPORTANT LINE of publishing—music—has done little or no periodical advertising of its wares to consumers, at least not in the "general" mediums. One music publishing house, however, the Waterson, Berlin & Snyder Company of New York announces a "consumer" advertising campaign in a list of leading magazines featuring three of its current successes, "Araby," "When I leave the world behind" and "I'm simply crazy over you."

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just published "Short Talks on Retail Selling," by S. Roland Hall, former principal of the School of Advertising and Salesmanship of the International Correspondence School and now Advertising Manager, Alpha Portland Cement. It is a little volume of chatty, inspirational talks on retail selling, the sort of book it pays to pass around among clerks in any store.

T. H. PAYNE & Co., booksellers and stationers, of Chattanooga, have just rounded out a half-century of business life. Beginning in Chattanooga just after the war, when it was a straggling village, mostly made up of relics of army commissary buildings and only a few comfortable residences, T. H. Payne and Z. C. Patten began business as Patten & Payne. Mr. Patten a little later drew out and the firm became T. H. Payne & Co., and under that name the business has grown and prospered.

NOT SO MUCH A WAR BOOK as a woman's book is "Kings, Queens and Pawns," by Mary Roberts Rinehart, which Doran has just published. It is the reaction of an American woman who can sympathize with the men on all sides of the conflict. Here the reader finds precisely how King Albert, met personally, impressed Mrs. Rinehart; how it seemed to meet men who a few months before had been the stars of week-end parties and were now turned into fighting machines.

THE SALE OF THE WILLIAM NELSON LIBRARY was concluded on November 23 at the American Art Galleries. The four sessions realized a total of $11,364.25. George D. Smith purchased for $810 the "Acts and Laws of His Majesty's Province of Nova Caesarea or New Jersey," printed at Burlington by James Keimer, in 1728; and for $370 a contemporary manuscript copy of the original declaration of Philip Cartaret, first Proprietary Governor of New Jersey, executed at Elizabethtown, November 5, 1681.

RAND McNALLY & Co. are utilizing the poster stamp craze to advertise certain of their juveniles. They are distributing a little booklet, "Stamplure, Children's Favorite Reading in Poster Stamps," which contains on the left hand pages chatty descriptions of Rand McNally juveniles and on the right hand pages a decorated square in which colored stamps descriptive of the books (furnished by the publishers upon receipt of six cents in stamps) are pasted.

IN CONNECTION with a nation-wide campaign for "safety first in boys' books" the first of a series of meetings to promote better reading for boys was held in the auditorium of the John Wanamaker store, New York City, on the afternoon of December 1. Claude P. Leland, superintendent of the bureau of libraries of the Board of Education, presided and Everett T. Tomlinson, author of historical stories for boys, spoke on the importance of literature for boys. There was a similar meeting on the following day.

AMONG THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS books of the fall is "The Thirteen Days," a chronicle and interpretation of those breathless days in July and early August, 1914, which preceded the European War. William Archer, the author, says in the preface, "My efforts has been to tell the story of the fateful days simply as it appears in the official documents, seldom going outside them, and making little attempt to place the events in relation to their historical or political background." The Oxford Press is also publishing, for the Carnegie Endowment for Peace "The Hague Conventions and Declaration of 1899 and 1907," edited by James Brown Scott.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL Co. has just published "Germany of Today" by George Stuart Fullerton, professor of philosophy in Columbia University and first American exchange professor to Austria. The author, who by the way is a full-blood American with no hyphens in his ancestry, says in his preface: "I have wished to present in brief outline a sketch which will give a just conception of the political and social constitution of the German nation and of the spirit with which it is penetrated. Owing to various reasons there is much misconception in this field among my countrymen. United Germany is a young and vigorous nation. So is the United States of America. The better the two understand each other, the better for both."

THE MACMILLAN Co. is just publishing "The Way of Martha and the Way of Mary" by Stephen Graham, author of "Russia and the World," "With Russian Pilgrims to Jerusalem" and other volumes. The book is, in the author's own words, "an interpretation and a survey of Eastern Christianity, and a consideration of the ideas at present to the fore in Christianity generally." It is in no sense however, a doctrinaire discussion. "If you would know what a nation is," says Mr. Graham, "you must ask what is the religion of the people," and in this sense "The Way of Martha and the Way of Mary" is an interpretation of Russia's inner self, of the "Russian idea."

THE SALE OF THE LIBRARY of the late Alfred Henry Lewis brought $4343 at the American Art Galleries on Wednesday of this week. The books had all been bound in calf and morocco, and a book plate of the owner was inserted in each volume. F. J. Marion paid $85 for Burton's "Arabian Nights," published at Denver, Colo., in 1900. H. Walker gave $40 for Audubon and Bachman's "Quadrupeds of North America," New York, 1851-54. William C. Atwater obtained for $70 the edition royale of "The Works of Balzac." Mrs. Stevens obtained for $76 the Aldine edition of the "British Poets." "The Satirist, or Monthly Meteor," illustrated by George Cruikshank, went to N. J. Bartlett of Boston for $32. Mrs. O. Wilson, Jr., gave $47.50 for the London, 1821, edition of "The Works of Dryden." William R. Hearst paid $37.50 for the "Heroes of the Nations," New York, 1896-1901, and $50 for "The Works of Hogarth," Philadelphia, 1900, an edition with the intaglio plates printed on India paper and limited to 100 copies.

MRS. KATHERINE D. OSBOURNE, wife of Lloyd Osbourne, lost her action in the Supreme Court recently to recover 152 letters and other writings and articles that had belonged to Stevenson. Justice Donnelly dismissed the suit, saying that Mrs. Osbourne had failed to prove ownership of the articles. The action, it will be remembered, was commenced a year ago when Mrs. Osbourne served the Anderson Auction Co. on the opening day of the big Stevenson sale with an injunction restraining the sale of these letters. Mrs. Osbourne had based her suit for the letters on a claim that Mr. Stevenson gave the letters to her before his death, but that at the request of the family she turned them over to Graham Balfour for use in preparing Stevenson's memoirs. Mrs. Osbourne said it was understood that the letters were to be returned to her, but they were sent to Mrs. Stevenson, who refused to give them up.

THE COMMITTEE to whom was assigned the decision upon the merits of the papers contesting for the prizes offered by Messrs. Hart Schaffner & Marx for 1915, has agreed upon the following award: Class A, 1, The first prize of $1000 to Yetta Scheffel, A.B., Northwestern University, 1906, graduate student in the University of Chicago, for a paper entitled "The Taxation of Land Value: A Study of Certain Discriminatory Taxes on Land"; 2, the second prize of $500 to Homer B. Vanderblue, A.B., Northwestern University, 1911, Ph.D., Harvard University, 1915, for a paper entitled "Railroad Valuation"; 3, honorable mention to Edwin G. Nourse, A.B., Cornell University, 1906, Ph.D., University of Chicago, 1915, for a paper entitled "The Chicago Produce Market." Class B, 1, The first prize of $300 to Nathan Fine, undergraduate in the University of Chicago, for a paper entitled "The Business Agent of the Building Trades Unions of Chicago"; 2, The second prize of $200 to Robert L. Wolf, undergraduate in Harvard University, for a paper entitled "Some Aspects of the Theory of Value."

THE NATIONAL Vigilance Committee of the A. A. C. W. reports the following interesting scheme: "Under the name Wilcox Advertising Agency of Boston, J. J. V. Wilcox offered to periodicals a three-inch advertisement of the Magazine Circulating Company, P. O. Box 5240, Boston, to run six months. The advertisement offered 'one year's supply of magazines for 10 cents.' It agreed, upon receipt of 10 cents in silver, to send the reader's name and address to hundreds of publishers of leading magazines and other periodicals, who would send free sample copies of their publications. Investigation by the National Committee failed to find the Magazine Circulating Company or the Wilcox Advertising Agency in Boston. On October 17, postal authorities caused the arrest of J. J. V. Wilcox on the charge of using the mails to defraud. It is alleged that Wilcox is the head of both concerns, and in his scheme has swindled periodicals in all parts of the world out of thousands of dollars' worth of space, and has received dimes from thousands of credulous individuals."

"OF THE 250,000 business corporations in the United States, not counting banking, railroad and public utilities concerns," said Vice Chairman Edwin N. Hurley of the Federal Trade Commission at the annual dinner of the Association of National Advertisers on Wednesday evening, "over 100,000 have no net income whatever. In addition, 90,000 make less than $5000 a year, while only the 60,000 remaining, the more successful ones, make $5000 a year and over. Turning now from net income to the total volume of business done by those 60,000 corporations, we find that 20,000 have sales of less than $100,000; 20,000 more sell from $100,000 to $250,000; 10,000 additional from $250,000 to $500,000; 5000 corporations ship annually $500,000 to $1,000,000 of goods; 4500 have total sales from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000; while only 462 industrial and mercantile corporations in the United States do an annual business of $5,000,000 or more. These striking figures exhibit a condition which has existed for many years. They show conclusively that big business, while important, constitutes but a small fraction of the trade and industry of the United States. They make clear that there is an unduly large proportion of unsuccessful business concerns."

AN IMPORTANT DECISION affecting information furnished by mercantile agencies concerning the financial standing of a person, firm or corporation was handed down by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York this week in a suit for damages brought by Alexander J. Munro of Chicago against the Bradstreet Company on the ground of gross negligence. The plaintiff, who was a subscriber of the defendant's agency, wired for information concerning the standing of a firm of New York furriers. The agency represented that the firm had assets of $58,500 and liabilities of $43,500 on the date the inquiry was made, whereas the information was obtained six months before. The plaintiff gave the firm six months credit to the extent of $1,650, but a month after the report was made the firm was thrown into bankruptcy. The plaintiff sued to recover the loss from the agency. The trial Justice dismissed the suit. The Appellate Division held that "the evidence would justify a finding of gross negligence and also that the defendant was guilty of constructive fraud." The higher court accordingly orders a new trial. Presiding Justice Ingraham and Justice Clarke dissented.

MESSRS. SPOTTISWOODE AND CO., LTD., London, have amalgamated with the firm of Ballantyne, Hanson and Co., of Edinburgh. Both firms have a reputation and a history. The origin of Messrs. Spottiswoode and Co.'s house dates from 1739. Its founder, William Strahan, was a famous craftsman, printing books for Dr. Johnson, Gibbon, Hume, Richardson and Smollett. The firm of Ballantyne, Hanson and Co. was founded at Kelso in 1796, and the business removed to Edinburgh in 1802, at the suggestion of Sir Walter Scott (who had been a schoolfellow of Ballantyne's), whose novels they printed. The story of the printing of the Waverley Novels has been often told and the misfortunes that overtook the firm are known to all students of literary history. By a strong effort these misfortunes were overcome, and the productions of Ballantyne, Hanson and Co. are well known for the beauty of typography, and have brought the firm a world-wide fame. No announcement has yet been made as to whether or not the Edinburgh house will be removed to London, but the employees have received a fortnight's notice the news of which caused quite a sensation in Edinburgh printing circles, as the firm is one of the largest employers of labor in that city, employing a staff of about 700 workers in normal times, although since the war the number has been reduced to 450. The amalgamation of two houses with such long literary associations is an event of uncommon interest.

Advertising Rates

One page	$25 00
Half page	14 00
Quarter page	7 00
Eighth page	4 00
One-sixteenth page	2 00

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred positions (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specific books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Unspecified wants, reprinted matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

"THE NOVEL IS THE BEST"

that one reviewer has read in a good while. Its length does not involve longueurs, its setting is always appropriate, and its characters act and react, and go their appointed ways, just as they might be expected to do in real life if we had the wit to discern their true motives."

That is the verdict of New York's Greatest Newspaper—The Evening Post.

BEST AUTHORS

The use of Nelson's India Paper makes it possible to put Dickens's largest novel, 950 pages (large type, same as this), in a pocket size volume only half an inch thick and weighing 8 ounces.

THE NEW CENTURY LIBRARY is a radical departure in the art of bookmaking. The size is only $4\frac{1}{4}$ by $6\frac{1}{4}$ inches, and not thicker than a monthly magazine. Each volume weighs less than eight ounces. As a library edition it is handsome in the extreme.

JUST THE BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS

THE TYPE is large and the printing is beautiful and clear. The India paper and handsome binding give a delightful volume, one that fits perfectly into Charles Lamb's requisite: "A volume you can easily hold in the hand and enjoy by the light of the evening lamp."

Isn't it a fact that most printers undertake to cover too much territory—that there are too few specialists?

For years our exclusive business has been Book Manufacturing. In that time we have met and solved most of the problems connected with the making of books.

Wouldn't it be a good plan to put your book manufacturing problems up to us, and let us do the worrying?

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in NOVEMBER, 1915

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas. W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e. GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.
